Patient Hi. Okay?

Doctor Hello there. You're all right?

I've got a couple of medical students with me. Is that all right?

Patient Yeah, it's fine.

Doctor Right, come through, sir. Take a seat.

(Patient Moaning)

You're seeming a lot of pain?

Patient Yeah.

Doctor What happened?

Patient So, 20 years ago, { 1 }. I broke { 2 }.

Doctor Oh dear...

Patient When my femur grew back, { 3 }, so I limped, and { 4 }. So, they had to screw it.

- Doctor I see.
- Patient But this last month, I've been getting really { 5 }. On Sunday morning, I woke up with just really bad pain in my hip and just my right hip. And { 6 }, and I'm just getting constant pain all the time.
- Doctor And you { 7 } it in any way?
- Patient No.
- Doctor Right, okay. And how are you feeling in yourself? Any fevers?
- Patient Yesterday, I felt like { 8 }.
- Doctor Is that because of the pain?
- Patient Yeah.
- Doctor Do you mind if I have a look?
- Patient Fine.
- Doctor Okay, if you just get on—
- Patient (Patient moves to an exam table)
- I can't lift it.
- Doctor You can't lift it? Give me your hand. It's all right.
- Right, so if you just relax your leg. I'll try to be as gentle as I can. So, { 9 }?
- Patient Yeah, that's how it is.

- Doctor Okay. Sorry, I'm just going to try and move it the other way. { 10 }?
- Patient Yeah. It hurts.
- Doctor Right, this is clearly a bad one.
- { 10 }. This is clearly a bad one. Yeah, that's what you say.
- So, you did have surgery on this hip joint?
- Patient Yeah.
- Doctor And how old were you then?
- Patient From what I can remember, I think about 14. (14?) 14...15.
- Doctor Did they tell you what the diagnosis was?
- Patient Arthritis, I think it was. But they did say it might not last that long, and { 11 }. They said that when I was a kid.
- Doctor Yeah.
- Patient But I've been fine. I play football, I go running—{ 12 }. But then, every now and then, I get quite a bit of joint pain.
- Doctor Okay, { 13 } now. The other option is, I can have a word with the hospital doctor, and they can assess you there.
- Patient Okay.
- Doctor { 14 }.
- (Calls the hospital)

My name is Dr. Shahed, calling from Rid Medical Center. I've got a patient—{ 15 }.

Now today, { 16 }. I was hoping that if you could assess him, please.

All right, thank you very much. Thank you.

(Phone call ends)

He's just going to have a chat with his senior colleague, and then they'll ring you straight back.

Patient

Okay.

Doctor

So, they've got your details now. Hopefully, they'll ask you to go straight to the ward, and then they'll assess you there. Is that all right?

Patient

That's fine. Great.

Patient Hi. Okay?

Doctor Hello there. You're all right?

I've got a couple of medical students with me. Is that all right?

Patient Yeah, it's fine.

Doctor Right, come through, sir. Take a seat.

(Patient Moaning)

You're seeming a lot of pain?

Patient Yeah.

Doctor What happened?

Patient So, 20 years ago, I got run over. I broke my leg in three places.

Doctor Oh dear...

Patient When my femur grew back, it grew back shorter, so I limped, and my hip bone kind of wore away. So, they had to screw it.

Doctor I see.

Patient But this last month, I've been getting really bad pain in both hips. On Sunday morning, I woke up with just really bad pain in my hip and just my right hip. And I can't put weight on it, and I'm just getting constant pain all the time.

Doctor And you don't remember falling or injuring it in any way?

Patient No.

Doctor Right, okay. And how are you feeling in yourself? Any fevers?

Patient Yesterday, I felt like I was going to pass out.

Doctor Is that because of the pain?

Patient Yeah.

Doctor Do you mind if I have a look?

Patient Fine.

Doctor Okay, if you just get on—

Patient (Patient moves to an exam table)

I can't lift it.

Doctor You can't lift it? Give me your hand. It's all right.

Right, so if you just relax your leg. I'll try to be as gentle as I can. So, that's the best you can tolerate?

Patient Yeah, that's how it is.

Doctor Okay. Sorry, I'm just going to try and move it the other way. You're not able to do that, are you?

Patient Yeah. It hurts.

Doctor Right, this is clearly a bad one.

That seems to have more range of movement than this one. This is clearly a bad one. Yeah, that's what you say.

So, you did have surgery on this hip joint?

Patient Yeah.

Doctor And how old were you then?

Patient From what I can remember, I think about 14. (14?) 14...15.

Doctor Did they tell you what the diagnosis was?

Patient Arthritis, I think it was. But they did say it might not last that long, and if it doesn't, it would be a hip replacement. They said that when I was a kid.

Doctor Yeah.

Patient But I've been fine. I play football, I go running—I'm kind of fit and healthy. But then, every now and then, I get quite a bit of joint pain.

Doctor Okay, I can give you some painkillers now. The other option is, I can have a word with the hospital doctor, and they can assess you there.

Patient Okay.

Doctor I'm just going to give them a ring.

(Calls the hospital)

My name is Dr. Shahed, calling from Rid Medical Center. I've got a patient—he's 29 and has had previous surgery on his right hip.

Now today, he presented with a four-week history of gradually worsening hip pain. I was hoping that if you could assess him, please.

All right, thank you very much. Thank you.

(Phone call ends)

He's just going to have a chat with his senior colleague, and then they'll ring you straight back.

Patient

Okay.

Doctor

So, they've got your details now. Hopefully, they'll ask you to go straight to the ward, and then they'll assess you there. Is that all right?

Patient

That's fine. Great.
